The Guild of Boston Artists, established in 1914 by the great painters of the day, including Edmund Tarbell, William Paxton, Frank Benson and Lilian Westcott Hale, has been the center for academic realism since its inception.

Our mission is to promote, nurture and encourage traditional painting while adhering to the highest standard of quality and presentation. The Guild strives to provide opportunities for an interchange of ideas between artists and the public.

Along with an aggressive exhibition schedule, the Guild offers educational programs in both the fall and spring. Throughout the year, we offer a variety of artist demonstrations where students and general onlookers can witness a variety of different techniques and ask questions. These events are made available through the goodwill of our artists and supporters, who continue to be the backbone of our organization.

The Guild also offers workshops for artists who wish to deepen their knowledge and understanding of traditional painting and sculpture.
